SECTION 01

Audience

"I've watched this region change over three decades, and I worry about what my grandchildren will have left to enjoy. I support ClearWater because they're protecting not just the landscapes I love but also the water that sustains all of us. I want to leave a legacy of clean waterways and protected natural areas for future generations."

Ann

Local Donor/Supporter

Age: 65
Work: Retired Professor
Family: Married | Two Adult Children
Location: Centre County, PA

BACKGROUND

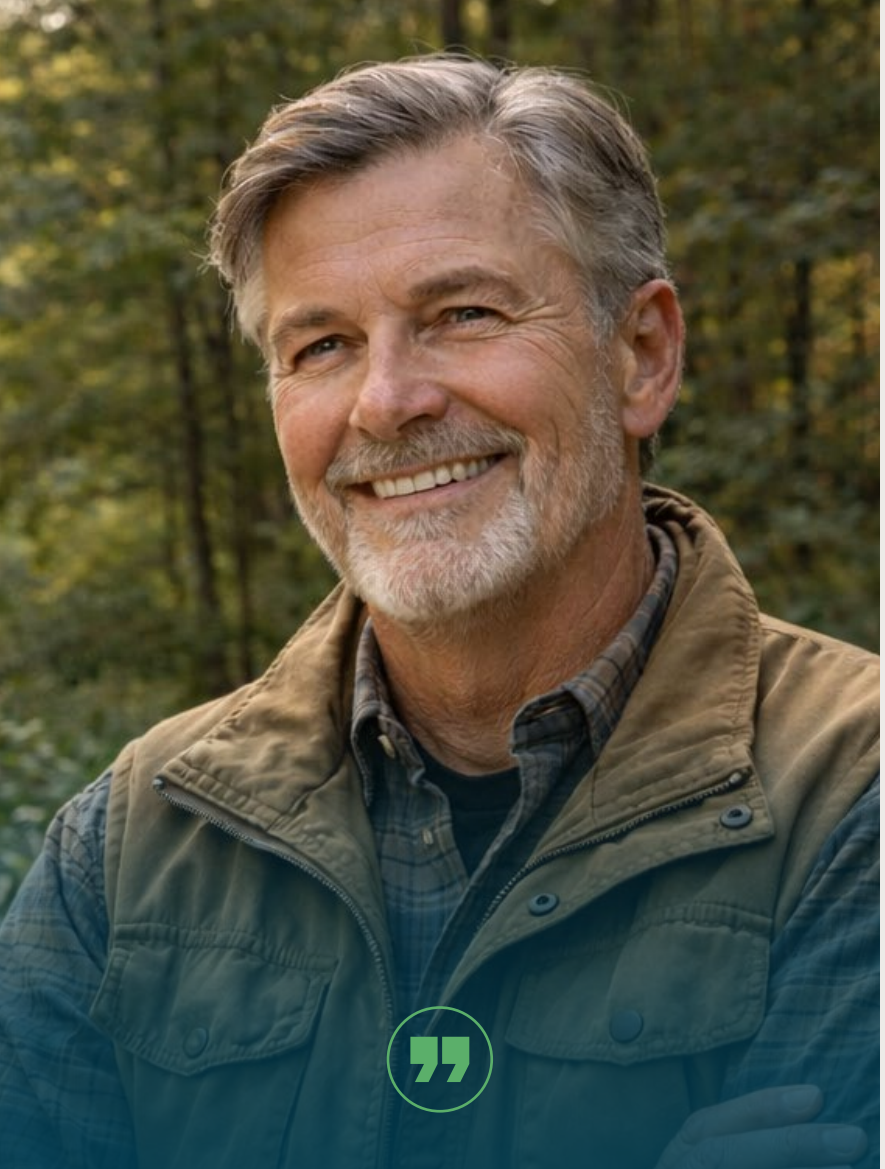
Ann has lived in Centre County for over 35 years after moving to the area to teach at Penn State University. She and her husband are outdoor enthusiasts who regularly hike local trails and have watched the region grow significantly during their time here. They have become increasingly concerned about development pressure on the region's natural landscapes.

MOTIVATIONS

Ann is deeply motivated by her desire to preserve the quality of water in the region and ensure its availability to all. She enjoys fishing with her grandchildren in the same streams where she took her own children years ago. Ann has watched neighboring communities struggle with overdevelopment and is committed to preventing the same fate for Centre County's natural spaces.

WHAT SHE NEEDS

Ann needs regular assurance that ClearWater is staying true to its core mission of protecting and conserving land and forests for long-term environmental impact. She appreciates tangible metrics such as acres preserved, habitat protected, and the resulting improvements in watershed health and stream quality. She responds well to communications that emphasize how her donations directly impact the future of the region.



"This land has been in my family for three generations. I know every tree, every bend in the stream. The thought of it being carved up for development after I'm gone keeps me up at night. I need to know that someone I trust will be watching over this place long after I can't anymore."

Age: 63
Work: Semi-Retired Business Owner
Family: Married | Three Adult Children
Location: Rural Centre County, PA

BACKGROUND

Mark inherited 75 acres of woodland and streams from his parents, who purchased it in the 1960s. He has deep emotional connections to the property where he spent his childhood exploring the land. As development has encroached on neighboring properties, Mark has become increasingly concerned about the long-term fate of his land.

MOTIVATIONS

Mark is motivated by a deep love for his property and a desire to see it remain undeveloped in perpetuity. He worries about what will happen after he is gone and wants the land his family has cherished for generations to remain protected. Mark sees himself as a temporary steward of this special place and wants a trusted partner to help maintain its natural state.

WHAT HE NEEDS

Mark needs a relationship built on trust and security. He requires regular meetings with staff who understand his emotional connection to the land. He values clear, straightforward information about conservation easements and what they mean for his property rights and family's future. Mark appreciates a newsletter that maintains his confidence in ClearWater's stability and commitment to long-term stewardship.

"My business thrives because of this community, and I believe we have a responsibility to give back in meaningful ways. My customers care about protecting what makes this region special, and so do I. WATERMARKS

Watermarks may incorporate the primary brand mark as a single-color graphic at low opacity to create subtle depth and brand reinforcement. When used, the watermark should be scaled large and placed on solid brand-color backgrounds to maintain legibility while adding understated visual interest.

ICONOGRAPHY

Iconography should follow a consistent line-art style with uniform stroke weight to ensure a clean, cohesive visual system across all materials. Icons should utilize approved brand colors and may appear as standalone elements or within a circular background when additional emphasis or containment is needed.

SECTION 08

File Guide

OVERVIEW

Each logo has several different file types that can be used with various applications. Be sure to use the appropriate logo file type for your application. A master set of all available logo file types is available for use; however, not all file types will be visually represented in this guide.

The following are definitions and explanations of the different logo file types, color types, and the logo file names. Understanding these terms will prove beneficial when using the logos.

VECTOR FILES

PDF
An editable vector-based file format. Its universal file format makes it extremely versatile. It's typically used for printing and easily sharing documents online.

EPS
Like a PDF, an EPS can be edited with any vector graphics program. Although it's becoming outdated, some print shops with older software will still request these files, so they're good to have on hand.

SVG
SVGs are great for websites or apps to keep logos and icons sharp and are infinitely scalable without pixelation.

IMAGE FILES

JPEG
A popular image format that is commonly used for photographs and web graphics. Its lossy compression allows for smaller file sizes than PNG, but it does not support transparent backgrounds.

PNG
Another image file format that is great for web graphics and digital displays. Supporting transparent backgrounds is a key advantage over JPEG, but file sizes are typically larger.

COLOR SPACES

RGB
The color space for digital displays. These files are used for digital purposes such as web graphics or photographs. Printing RGB files can result in blurry images with inaccurate colors. Use CMYK or Pantone files for printing purposes.

CMYK
CMYK stands for Cyan, Magenta, Yellow, and Black. These are the four basic colors used for printing. CMYK files are for any project that will be physically printed, such as business cards or brochures. They are not for screen use.

PANTONE
Pantone is a standardized system for color. Unlike CMYK, a Pantone or spot color is a single color created from a precise mixture of inks. Their color accuracy is superior to CMYK, but can become costly using more than three colors.
